Comments:	Yet again, I am writing in hopes of saving my block from the gross amount of high density development done in my immediate neighbourhood, not to mention in almost every neighbourhood in Richmond. When is enough, enough? This doesn't seem to uttered nor entertained in Richmond. The extra strain this amount of development puts on schools, parks, resources, and not to mention overcrowded roadways doesn't appear to matter in comparison to what is going to be revenue for the city. There isn't any consideration being given to the possible preservation of single family homes. There isn't any consideration given to the higher rates of crimes in crowded high density neighbourhoods. I am tired of feeling as though I am being forced out a home that has been in my family for generations and is well maintained. I don't want hundreds of neighbours in my immediate block, I don't want higher crime rates, and I sure don't want any more congestion on our roads or in our streets. As with any development proposal that "is in my back yard" I remain completely opposed.
