- the use of grant monies to undertake a number of initiatives highlighted in the Progress Report, including the preparation of a CBRN (Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear) Response Plan

5. CANCER PRESUMPTION FOR FIREFIGHTERS
(Report: May 14/2004, File No.: 05-1600-03-01/2004-Vol 01) (REDMS No. 1122128)

Fire Chief Jim Hancock briefly reviewed his report, during which he commented on his recommendation that because of the imminent completion of the Workers' Compensation Board (WCB) study on cancer, that the City await the outcome of that study before taking any action. In response to a question, he confirmed that although the study would be completed in June, the final report would not be available until the Fall of this year.

Mr. Tim Wilkinson, President of IAFF Local 1286, accompanied by John Mitchell, expressed opposition to the recommendation that the City await the outcome of the WCB study. He suggested that it would be more beneficial to the families of firefighters to take action rather than to do nothing.

Mr. Wilkinson then spoke about the work of Dr. Tee Guidotti, an expert in the area of firefighter cancers, and about the number of toxins which firefighters faced when fighting fires. He noted that the equipment worn by Richmond firefighters was superior but even so, the clothing did not prevent the absorption of toxins through the skin, as there was no way to protect firefighters from these toxic materials.

Mr. Wilkinson provided information on the support for cancer presumption given by other provinces – Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Nova Scotia, which had all adopted cancer presumptive legislation. He added that the province of Ontario, while not enacting legislation, had adopted a policy regarding this issue. Mr. Wilkinson also provided information on a resolution passed at the Union of British Columbia Municipalities' Annual General Meeting in 2003, which had been endorsed by several cities. He voiced the opinion that based on the diverse support shown for this legislation that the City should be taking action. He then provided information on the number of firefighter deaths which had occurred in British Columbia, and in Richmond specifically, due to cancer. Mr. Wilkinson advised that figures provided indicated that the cost was approximately ½ cent to 1 cent per 1,000 for cancer presumption.

In concluding his presentation, Mr. Wilkinson asked that the Committee endorse the 2003 UBCM AGM Resolution B133, which recognized cancer presumption for the fire service in British Columbia, and request that the WCB take the appropriate steps to include the types of cancer identified by Dr. Guidotti in legislation as presumptively caused by the occupation of fire fighting without the need for further study.

Discussion then ensued among Committee members and the delegation on:

- whether the City would have any opportunity to review the WCB study and to provide input into any proposed legislation
- the need for the City to be involved prior to the completion of the WCB report

- the cost of cancer presumption, and whether there were any towns within British Columbia with cancer presumption legislation which could be used as examples
- those municipalities in British Columbia which supported cancer presumption, and the lack of support from the Greater Vancouver Regional District
- the request of the delegation to support firefighters in provincial cancer presumption legislation as this would result in all cities being included and it would be more difficult to remove legislation than WCB policy
- the difficulties being experienced by IAFF Local 1286 with the WCB in having Richmond firefighters accepted for cancer presumption.

During the discussion, Committee members expressed agreement that the City should be involved in any decision on cancer presumption, but requested information on the cost of this legislation. Advice was given in response that the cost effect to cities for cancer presumption would be minimal because the cost would be spread through out the entire province. Further information was provide by Fire Chief Hancock that a 'cost experience' had been undertaken, however, there were no figures available which could be verified. He stated that the statements made about the cost being spread over a wider population base were correct, but that the cost was dependent on involvement and population.

As a result of the discussion, the following motion was introduced:

It was moved and seconded

That the following 2003 UBCM AGM Resolution B133, recognizing cancer presumption for the fire service of British Columbia, be endorsed.

"WHEREAS fire fighting is recognized as a hazardous occupation to the health for fire fighters;

AND WHEREAS recent medical and scientific studies show a strong association between working conditions experienced by fire fighters over time and the occurrence of certain diseases;

AND WHEREAS other provincial jurisdictions have adopted Workers' Compensation legislation and regulations or are in the process of adopting legislation and regulations acknowledging the relationship between fire fighting and certain cancers;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the Union of BC Municipalities lobby the government of British Columbia to have cancer presumption recognized by the Workers' Compensation Board for the fire service of British Columbia."
