STAFF REPORT

ORIGIN

The provincial Emergency Program Act requires local authorities to formally establish an emergency management organization. Council Bylaw 7091, which was adopted in April, 2000, established Richmond's emergency management organization as Council, the Council Standing Committee appointed responsibility for overseeing the Emergency Program, an Emergency Control Group, and an Emergency Planning Committee.

As a result of the creation of the new Community Safety Division, a new Bylaw 7234 has been prepared to reflect the current organizational structure. The new bylaw replaces existing bylaw 7091. This report seeks approval of Bylaw 7234.

ANALYSIS

There are three principal changes introduced in the new bylaw:

1. An Emergency Policy Action Group has been added as a component of Richmond's emergency management organization. The addition of this component makes the bylaw correspond better with the provincial emergency response management system known as BCERMS. This group, headed by the Chief Administrative Officer (CAO), would ensure that policy decisions of Council are carried out by the Emergency Control Group, which is responsible for managing the response operations at the City's Emergency Operations Centre (located at the City Works Yard).
2. The position appointed to head the Emergency Control Group has been changed from the CAO to the General Manager of Community Safety. This change has been made to more closely align the bylaw with the City's existing reporting structure, wherein General Managers are responsible for managing their operations and the CAO works with Council to establish policy.
3. The makeup of the Emergency Control Group has been modified slightly to align with the new organizational structure.

The attached "Emergency Management Organization" chart, Attachment 1, shows the proposed emergency management structure. It also provides a brief description of the roles of the various components of the emergency management organization as follows:

- Council has overall responsibility for the direction and control of the City's response efforts. As such, Council would Declare a State of Local Emergency, if required, to delegate powers to designated individuals. Council would also establish overall policy direction to be applied to the response.
- The Emergency Policy Action Group, which represents the City's current senior staff group, would be responsible for ensuring that approved policy direction of Council is applied to the City's response efforts.

- The Emergency Control Group, headed by the General Manager – Community Safety, is responsible for managing the response operations from the Emergency Operations Centre.
- The Community Safety Committee is responsible for ensuring that the City's emergency planning requirements (as required under the Emergency Program Act) are met and maintained.
- The Emergency Planning Committee is responsible for preparing the City's emergency response plans and presenting them to Council through the Community Safety Committee.

FINANCIAL IMPACT

None

CONCLUSION

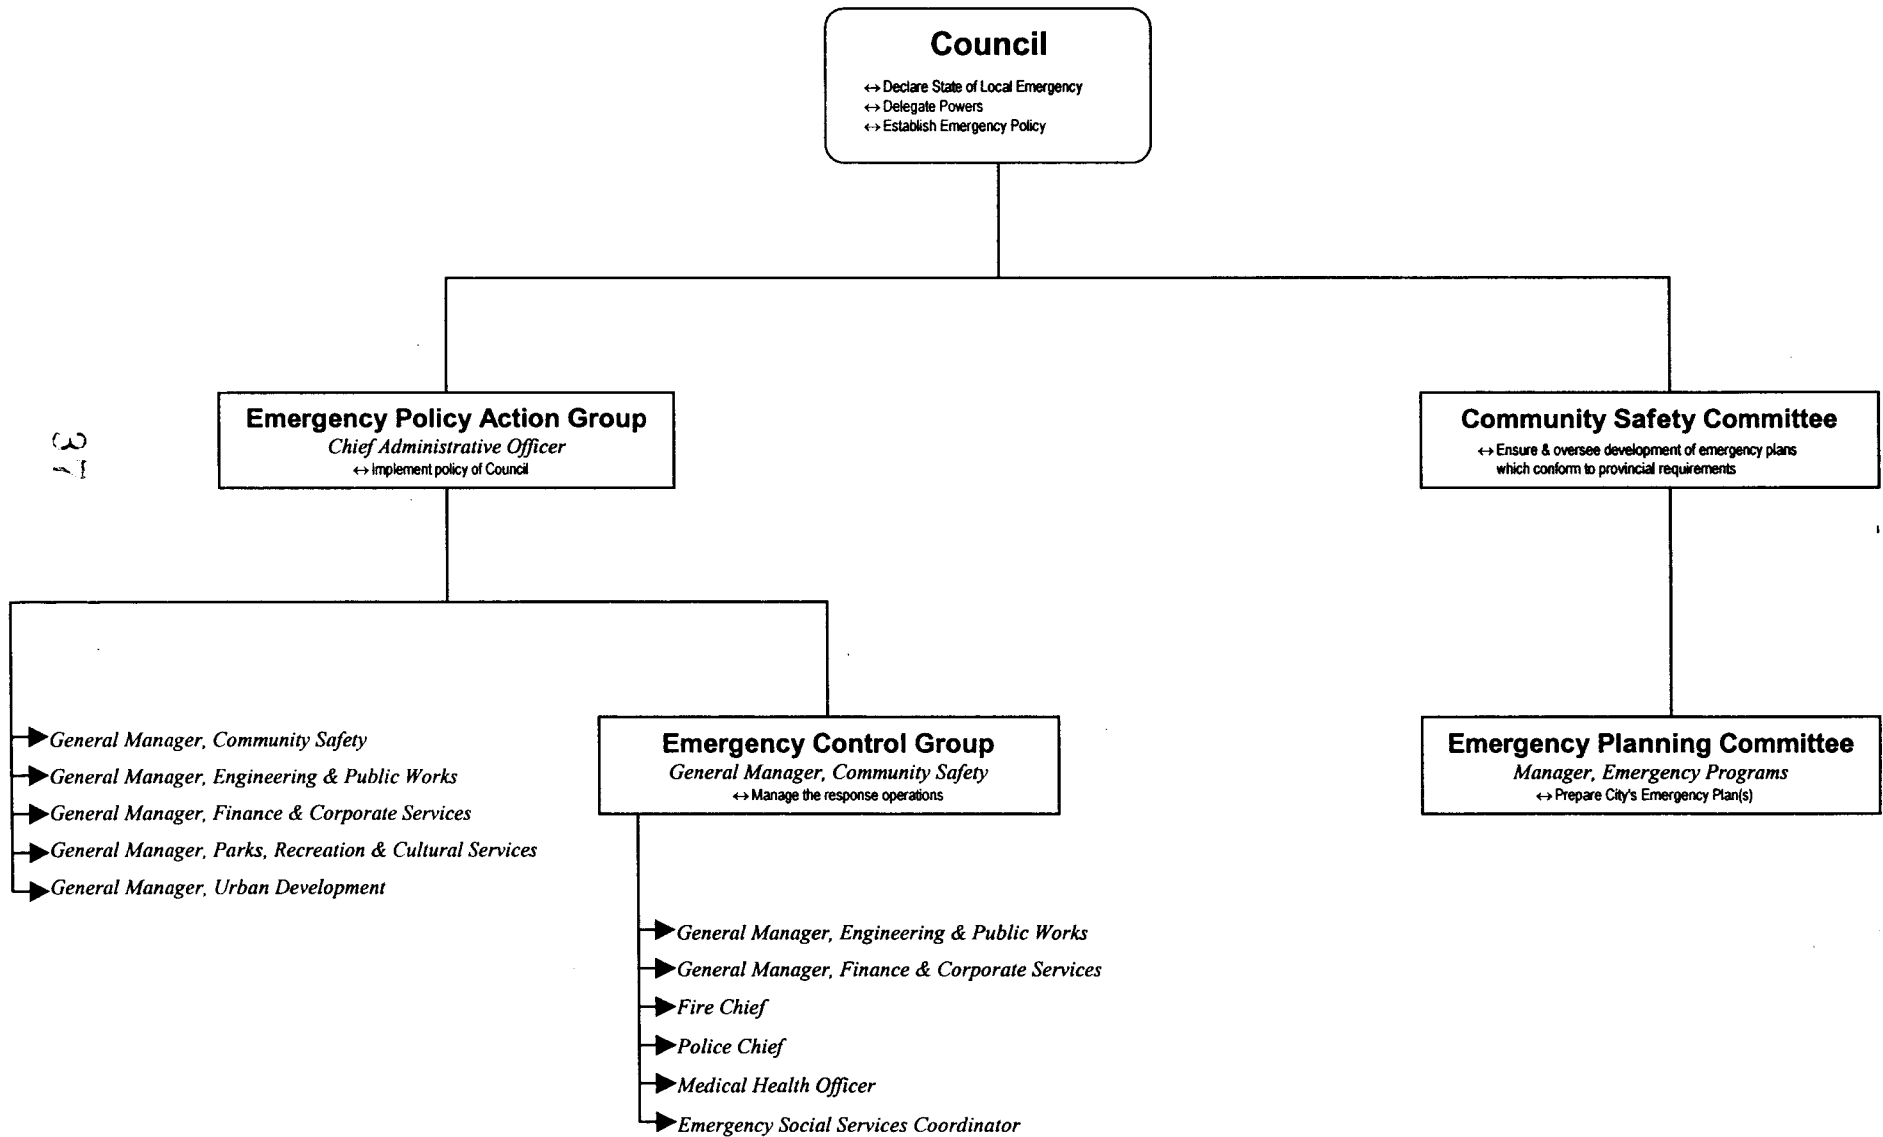

The changes in proposed Bylaw 7234 ensure that the City's emergency management structure remains current and relevant to our emergency planning efforts. An approved structure is also necessary to facilitate the development of the City's revised emergency plan, work on which is currently underway.
