2. 2002 DEVELOPMENT COST CHARGE PROGRAM AND BYLAW

(Report: Nov. 12/02, File No.: 1070-04-01) (REDMS No. 902713, 707605, )

The Manager, Special Projects, Finance & Corporate Services, Graham Willis, briefly reviewed the report with the Committee.

Discussion then ensued on the timing of the implementation of the new rates, and whether any consideration had been given to the phasing-in of these rates to give the development industry time to adjust to the increase. Concern was expressed during the discussion that immediate implementation of these rates would result in even higher construction costs for residential development, which in turn, would be passed on to new home purchasers.

Also discussed was the rationale for increasing the development cost charge rates for 'Commercial/Light Industrial' at a time when light industry was being encouraged to relocate to Richmond.

Ms. Renata Bublick, Associate Executive Director, Urban Development Institute (UDI), referred to correspondence (dated September 11th, 2002, from the President, UDI), and spoke further on the proposed increase in Development Cost Charges (DCCs), especially with respect to residential development. She stated that if Richmond wished to pursue the provision of affordable housing, then the City should not be endorsing policies which resulted in increased costs and which made it increasingly difficult to build such housing.

Ms. Bublick stated that, while UDI appreciated the efforts of staff, the proposed increase to the DCC rates to single-family, townhouse and low rise residential developments were still too high. She spoke about other costs being faced by the development and construction industry, and suggested that any increase should be phased-in over a period of time.

Discussion then ensued among Committee members, staff and the delegation on the proposed DCC rates. Clarification was provided in response to a statement made by Ms. Bublick about Richmond having the highest DCC rates for residential development, that Surrey and Langley's rates would still be considerably higher than those being recommended by staff.

Discussion continued, during which, in response to questions, advice was given that any projects completed in 2002 would not be affected by the proposed new rates. It was noted however, that those projects which were not completed and continued into 2003 would be subject to payment of the new rates.

Also discussed further was the request of UDI that the implementation of the proposed DCC rates be phased-in over a two year period, and the impact which such a delay could have on future revenue generation for the City.

Reference was made to correspondence from the Richmond School Board (dated November 12th, 2002), in which the City was requested to exempt School Board properties from the new drainage utility fees. It was moved and seconded

  - (c) The Solid Waste and Recycling Regulation Bylaw 6803, Amendment Bylaw No. 7553.
